DEVELOPING AREAS STUDIES

A Guide to Reference Sources

This multi-disciplinary bibliography has been compiled to introduce students to reference resources on the Third World.

It looks at reference works on developing areas as a whole; for specific topics or area studies search MUSE using the S= command for topics such as:

DEVELOPING COUNTRIES
ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
RURAL DEVELOPMENT
WOMEN IN DEVELOPMENT
WOMEN IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT

[country] -- ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

The Reference collection contains many specialized subject bibliographies which may be identified by a keyword search. A keyword search has the advantage that results are shown in chronological order with the most recent publications first, e.g. K=third adj world and bibliography.su.
K=developing.su. adj countries.su. bibliography.su.

Government publications are an important source of material for Developing Areas Studies. The Government Documents Department, 2nd floor, McLennan-Redpath Library has a large collection of documents including special indexes and bibliographies not covered in this guide. McGill is a depository library for: Canadian Federal Government, Quebec Provincial Government, the United Nations and the European Union. In addition, representative collections from the other provinces, the United States, and Great Britain as well as smaller collections from various other countries or international organizations are maintained.

IDRC, the International Development Research Center in Ottawa, offers low cost access to computerized bibliographic files on MINISIS. Files include their library holdings UNESCO publications, UNIDO publications etc. For a mediated search, please fill out a request form at the Reference desk.

You may also want to visit McGill's Center of Developing Studies, 3715 Peel St., room 212, which maintains a documentation centre, the holdings of which are not found in MUSE.

Other bibliographic guides, prepared by the Reference Department, which may be relevant to researchers of developing areas are available for consultation at the Reference Desk and for sale at cost at the Copy Service:

Africa, South of the Sahara
Caribbeana
China
East Asia
Economics
Latin America
Political Science and International Relations
South Asia

Additional locations for titles mentioned here may be found by checking MUSE and by calling up the catalogues other Montreal universities via the MIDAS Homepage on the World Wide Web (http://www.library.mcgill.ca/mcgindex.htm). This page is located on Scholars Workstations available in many McGill libraries. MIDAS also provides links to a number of local and global resources including indexes and abstracts, electronic journals and texts and many other Internet resources.

If you have any difficulty using this bibliography or the reference sources listed in it, please do not hesitate to ask a reference librarian for assistance.

This bibliography was compiled by Isabelle Laplante, stagiaire, and edited by Suzy M. Slavin, Reference Department, Humanities and Social Sciences Library.

I. GUIDES TO THE LITERATURE

Norgaard, Ole. Social Science Literature on Developing Countries: An Annotated Guide to Information Sources. Copenhagen, Denmark, 1978.

Ref Z7164 U5N6

The first part of this guide is an introduction to some basic features of social science literature on developing countries. The second and most essential part consists of a guide to existing secondary information sources (mostly bibliographies).

Webb, W. H. Sources of Information in the Social Sciences: A Guide to the Literature. 3rd ed. Chicago, Ill., American Library Association, 1986.

Ref Z7161 S666 1986

Provides a general introduction and basic bibliographic resources for each of the social sciences and allied areas such as history, anthropology, sociology etc. Supersedes the two earlier editions by Carl M. White. Now thoroughly updated with cross references and subject, author, title indexes, it is one of the major guides for research in the social sciences. Section C472 (p.184) is an annotated bibliographical essay, " Progress in Human Geography: Regional Developement and Developement Studies."

II. ENCYCLOPEDIAS

International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences. New York, MacMillan, 1968. 19v.

Ref H40 A2I5

Contains 1900 articles, with bibliographies, by 1500 experts. Especially useful as a starting place for general information on a subject or person. Volume 17 contains a general index. The biographical supplement (volume 18) contains entries for approximately 200 persons, not found in the initial set, and each entry is followed by a list of works and a supplementary bibliography. Social science quotations arranged alphabetically by author are found in volume 19.

Kurian, George Thomas. Encyclopedia of the Third World. 4th ed. New York, Facts on File, 1992.

Ref HC59.7 K87 1992

This three volume work describes the political, economic and social systems of 122 countries. The volumes contain lists of acronyms and abbreviations, maps, fact sheets for quick reference, tables and charts for statistical information. For each country there is a chronology of historical events and a bibliography of books and films and official publications. It is a good source, well organized and with information clearly presented.

III. DICTIONARIES

Ali, Sheikh R. The International Organizations and World Order Dictionary. ABC-CLIO, Santa Barbara, California, 1992.

Ref JX 1995 A4595 1992

Describes international organizations or associations interested in politics, economics, security and defence around the world. A paragraph of signifiance explains the historical context of each terms. Subject index.

Carroll, Margaret. Acronyms Relating to International Development. Ottawa, International Development Research Centre, 1980.

Ref HC15 C3

An alphabetical list to aid in identifyying the complete names of organizations and projects found frequently in their acronym form.

Dictionary of Development: Third World Economy, Environment, Society. 2v., New York, Garland Publishing, 1990.

Ref HC59.7 D513 1990

The first volume gives developing country indicators, followed by definitions of concepts and organizations related to social and economic development (letter A to I). Volume two gives definitions (J to Z), and a list of periodicals, compiled from the NGLS (United Nations Non-Governmental Liaison Service) Directory of Development Education as well as from Satis (Socially Approved Technology Development System (from the Netherlands), and other sources. Entries often include bibliographic references and there are cross references.

Fry, Gerald W. and Galen R. Martin. The International Development Dictionary. Santa Barbara, California, ABC-CLIO Press, 1991.

Ref HF 1359 F79 1991

Entries includes a definition, plus a paragraph of Significance in which the authors discuss and analyse the term's historical and current relevance. The volume is organized into four chapters, and each chapter is subsequently divided into analytical categories. There is an alphabetic list of entries at the beginning. Cross references, referring to entry numbers, often complete definitions.

Hadjor, Kofi Buenor. Dictionary of the Third World Terms. New York, N. Y., Penguin Books, 1993.

Ref D883 H33 1993

The introduction gives an explanation of the term "Third World". Entries are all presented in straightforward alphabetical order. As a dictionary, it describes concepts, terms, organizations, persons, but gives few statistics. Cross-references are clearly presented. Suggestions for further readings appear at the end of a number of entries.

Kurian, George Thomas. Glossary of the Third World: Words for Understanding Third World People & Culture. New York, Facts on File, 1989.

Ref GN307 K87 1989

This A to Z list of mostly non-English terms is intended "to survey, explore, and illustrate the rich variety of Third World Cultures" and to complement the author's Encyclopedia of the Third World. (See Sec. II)

Mini-Dictionary of International Development. Hull, Quebec, Youth Editions Group, 1990.

GovDocs Ref CA1 EXY31 1990 M32

In both French and English, this small dictionary defines basic terms and concepts related to developing areas. Refers to some of the major organisations in the world that are concerned with international development and gives a short description of their activities. Includes cross references. Another translating glossary, including English, German and French terms, is Dictionary of Development Economics (Ref HB61 S32). Arranged by subject, it has alphabetical indexes for each language.

Ziring, Laurence, Jack C. Plano and Roy Olton. International Relations: A Political Dictionary. 5th ed., Santa Barbara, California, ABC-CLIO, 1995.

Ref JX 1226 P55 1995

Mainly oriented towards post-Cold War international relations. Each chapter covers a wide array of subjects. All 714 entries, presenting treaty, agencies, organisations, facts and concepts, include a paragraph illuminating the term's significance and providing historical perspective. Chapter 5, "International Economics and Development" is particularly relevant. Cross-references as well as a consolidated index at the end of the volume, increase usefulness.

IV. HANDBOOKS

Humana, Charles. World Human Rights Guide. 3rd ed. New York, Oxford University Press, 1992.

Ref JC571 H86 1992

Alphabetically arranged it describes the human rights performance of countries, based on a questionnaire covering some 40 indicators from major UN treaties. A general introduction is followed by a country-by-country survey, with rankings for each of the indicators. Alphabetical arrangement.

International Handbook of Human Rights. New York, Greenwood Press, 1987.

Ref JC571 I587 1987

19 chapters alphabetically arranged cover countries such as Canada, Cuba, Chile, Spain, Japan, South Africa, etc., for human rights violations. The volume focuses on national human rights, that is, the way states treat their own people. Each chapter is quite lengthy and includes notes and suggested readings. There is a selected bibliography and a separate index.

The Least Developed Countries: A Statistical Profile. United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), New York, NY, 1990.

GovDocs UN UNCLDC 11 9

There are 42 countries identified as "least developed" by the United Nations General Assembly. The guide provides a handy form of reference by presenting key indicators of development on those countries as a group and individually. Use it with the Atlas of the Least Developed Countries (See section VIII.).

V. YEARBOOKS

Europa World Year Book. 1989- London.

GovDocs	Journal	Lib. has: 1981-

Published 3x/year, this abstracting journal lists reports and papers by and for the United Nations in the field of economic and social development. It consists of the bibliographic index, which contains a full description of each report arranged alphabetically by title within broad categories. The subject index, at the end, represents the main topics covered in a particular report or paper.

International Development Abstracts. Elsevier/Geo Abstracts, Norwich, England.

Ref Index Stands	HD 72 I5	Lib. has: 1982-

This monthly provides comprehensive coverage of the current literature for all developing and newly industrialized countries, as well as covering selected topics on "transitional" economies in the Former Communist Bloc and "Fourth World" issues in developed countries. The information is derived from over 500 journals and other serial publications, books, conference proceedings, theses, etc. Browse the content using the subject classification or the subject, author, and regional indexes.

Rural Development Abstracts. v. 1, 1978- Slough, U.K.

Ref	HN49 C6R874	Lib. has: v. 11, 1988-

A bimonthly journal containing 3000 abstracts of documents concerned with rural development in the Third World. The scope of the journal is broad and coverage includes environmental issues, agricultural and industrial productions, investment, development aid, and women. Books, journals, bulletins and reports are indexed. Browsing is facilitated by the table of contents and chapter headings or using the subject/geographical index.

Sage Urban Studies Abstracts. 1964- Thousand Oaks, CA.

Ref Index Stands HT51 S24 Lib. has: 1973-

Each quarterly issue contains 250 separate abstracts of important recent literature - carefully cross-indexed for easy reference. Coverage includes books, articles, pamphlets, government publications, significant speeches, and legislative research studies, as well as other fugitive material. Major coverage related to urbanisation; thus economic development and planning, and also developing countries sections are interesting.

World Agricultural Economics & Rural Sociology Abstracts. CAB International, Oxon, UK.

Ref Index Stands HD1401 W6 Lib. has: 1966-

This monthly contains 7800 abstracts of documents concerned with agricultural economics and rural sociology worldwide. It also includes coverage of environmental and natural resources issues, and aspects of the food, biotechnology and fisheries industries of interest to economists. The content list gives a broad outline of the order in which abstracts are organized. They are sorted first by subject (policy, developing countries, etc.), then by product where relevant, and finally geographically by the country to which they refer.

X. BIBLIOGRAPHIES

A. General

Gran, Guy. An Annotated Guide to Global Development: Capacity-Building for Effective Social Change. Pittsburg, Pa., Economic and Social Development Program, Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, University of Pittsburgh, 1987.

Ref Z7164 E15G7 1987
